WELCOME BACK TO THE OAK FAIR!

Hello and welcome back to the Oak Fair here at Stock Gaylard.

As always, thank you so much for coming to this year's Oak Fair. To our new visitors, welcome! And to our returning ones, welcome back!

I hope you have all been able to enjoy the last 12 months since you were last here. We have been making the most of the dry summer on the farm here, getting many a job done that can only be achieved with dry ground and blue skies, something we have not found ourselves short of!

In regards to this year's event, we have, as always, kept ourselves consistent with the years before. We have a few new stalls and exhibits that have joined the mass of our regulars. We are also pleased to welcome back Martin Richards and his sawmill (found at the end of the Machinery & Timber Yard) who has been away for the last couple of years, so please make sure to see him along with Nigel Paul and his work bench. They will both be doing demonstrations throughout the day of how wood used to be milled.

Once again we would like to remind you of our support for the Dorset & Somerset Air Ambulance (found on Conservation Row near the Crusader Oak). We had a very successful collection last year, the exact figure evading me at the time of writing this, and we would be forever grateful for any donations you are able to offer, even just the change in your pocket, made on your way out of the fair. Their service is invaluable to all us.

Otherwise, please enjoy the show and we hope to see you again next year!

All the best

Jack

Signed copies of Julian's books: Britain's Tree Story, World Tree Story and his most recent title: Britain's Ancient Forest – Legacy and Lore will be available throughout the weekend, the latter of which includes an online link to download specially written forest music.
